Mr. Allison wald the committee was unable to report any conclusions, and it would be impossible for them to make an intelligent report at his session. They believed that the subject was one of importance, and he therefore submitted, on behalf of the committee, a resolution providing for the appointment of a select committee of five Senators, lost during the recess and inquire into all the circumstances connected with the escape of these Indians and their subsequent slaughter, the committee to have power to examine witnesses, &c. Agreed to.

The Vice-President then laid before the Senate the unfinished business, it being the bill to provide additional accommodations for the Library of Congress, the pending question being, on the motion of Mr. Conkling, to recommit the bill to the Library Committee, with instructions to report a bill providing for a commission of skilled persons to examine and report touching the different sites for the library, and, especially, touching practical changes which may be made in the Capitol building adapted to the accommodations of the two Houses of Congress and the library.

Mr. Blaine, in the course of his remarks, spoke of the ventilation of the Senate Chamber and Hall of the House, and said the Senate Chamber and Hall of the House, and said the Senate was bad count, but the House was worse. He had no doubt the mortality among the members of the House of Representatives this year was due to the bad ventilation of the House. He wanted to use this exigency for a library, as a lever to procure the legislative chambers. He advocated the enlargement of the Capitol building, as slid Mr. Gordon, Mr. Edmunds, and Mr. Hamilin.

Mr. Havanto favored the location of the library in a building distinct from the legislative build. The site on the east front of the Capitol crounds, proposed by the amendment of the Senator from Vermont, was the best one the city afforded. He thought if possible, by the intellement aid of architects, to change the present legislative halls so as to leave them open into the pure air, and thus ventilate them, instead of by artificial means. He advocated the crection of a suitable building east of the Capitol for a milional library, and a working library could be retained in the Capitol.

2. Mr. Blains said he was not a strict constructionist, but the Senator from Delaware was, and he was satonished to hear him advocate the construction of a separate building for a national library. Finally the amendment was adopted—OI to St. On motion of Mr. Conong (assented to by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations), the salaries of the general superintendent and assistant general superintendent of the Life-Saving Service were increased from $3,000 to $1,000 and from $2,000 to $2,500.

The amendment offered by Mr. Harrison and advocated by him and Messas, Aldrich and Burchard to increase the salary of the Assistant Treasurer at Chicago from $1,000 to $1,500, was rejected.

Mr. Hawitt offered an amendment vepealing the clause in the legislative appropriation bill of last year which authorizes the Socretary of the Treasury to test control of the saving to see coin certificates in payment to depositions of buillion at mints and assay offices other than New York. He stated that the effect of that provision had been to compet the Secretary of the Treasury to expend $15,000 for the transportation of only from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic coast. There was no occasion for such expenditure, and therefore that provision should be repealed.

In the course of the discussion a good deal of feeling was manifested by Mr. Patterson (Col.) and Mr. Maginnis in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Hawitr resented the suggestion.

Mr. Davis said that the law in regard to detect the first was a dead letter in Chicago and St. Louis. Large whisky corporations in those cities owned the internal revenue collectors, and the corruption was not so much in the distiller as in the detective. If homest men to deal with.
